

Dear Beloved Stakeholders,

Good day! May the grace of God and the love of our heavenly father be with you. My greetings and respect to all of you, our beloved stakeholders and generous sponsors. We, the teachers of KMMSI are very grateful and blessed for continuous support to us in spite of the crisis we are facing now a days. This pandemic taught us get closer to God and have more time to read his word and do his works. Also create closer bond to the family by praying together. A wave of gratitude to our beloved board especially ma'am Merlinda for always inspiring us with the word of God show us a motherly love that make us feel secure and to have more faith to God . To ma'am Marissa for giving us encouragement in doing more of our task and guidance to make us adapt this new normal teaching easily. To sir Allan for the extra effort to give us all our request and beautify our classrooms.

As today's educator we need to design a lesson, assessment, grading system and think of our purposes and priorities on this modular learning. Encouraging student learning is the best and not just let the pupils accountable for their learning in modular we should give continuous feedback from our pupils learning. At first, it's hard, but I have learned to cope and adapt to the new normal of teaching for the sake of my students.

We teachers here are working hard in reproducing the modules and distributing to the parents weekly. Its really a big help that the school provide us everything we need. If there is anything positive about the new modular learning method that would be learners to become independent. Now they should focus on their modules on how to answers the activities and parents also can monitor. The bad thing about modular is the reading of our learners especially to us lower grades we cannot visit learners and give them remediation and assistance. The action that I make is to have an online reading assistance to each of them to cope up reading. But the sad thing is I can only accommodate those who have internet in their homes. I can only call by phone those who can't.

As a teacher today it's very encouraging to see parents who came from a far communities despite of their busy schedules they go to school to get modules, trying their best to help us continue education in their child.

There are also parents share their experience that they also need to know the topic well for them to help us explain and have a right discipline for their child to listen. But sometimes it's hard to teach children at home because it is their "comfort zone" there are many distractions like television, sleeping, eating and also playing with their friends.

Today's new normal will never be the same as face to face teaching but we all need to adopt and continuously support pupils to learn even at the midst of this pandemic. We are doing the best we can to have a good result as possible with the help of God and of yours.

Praying for good health and safety for your families a midst this pandemic. God bless and more power!

Respectfully yours,
Jellyn M. Lara
